

Sewerage improvements to begin in Waveland

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The City of Waveland's board of aldermen approved the first bills in connection with the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) water and sewerage extension project Wednesday.

Mayor Stella Frilot told the board that equipment designated for the work should be moved into the city (northeast section) within the next week. Work is expected to begin shortly thereafter.

City attorney Lucien Gex explained as the job progressed, the board would need to approve various costs as stages of the work were completed. The city would go to the bank and request the particular amount needed and FHA bonds would pay back the bank, which is known as interim financing.

Ward 3 Alderman Curtis P. "Phil" Colson reported his findings of conditions at the Martin Luther King Park following an inspection of the area.

In the report he listed a damaged fence, suggesting it should be removed; a light pole, picnic table and adjoining concrete slab which he found to be too closely located to a ball field; restroom facilities in need of repair; a damaged bench; a broken swing seat; and a rusting slide.

He also recommended the need for a toddler-sized slide and swing seat.

The board took his report and recommendations under advisement, saying the city would repair and paint those items within their ability and the others would be considered in the upcoming budget.

Civil engineer Duke Levy made a presentation to the board on drainage problems in the Idlewood subdivision.

Levy, hired by the city to conduct the study, tifying to know that four years of hard work is appreciated by the citizens of Hancock County.

"It is a relief not to have to gear up for a campaign. It's allowing me to start preparing for the next session; I'm drafting several measures now for pre-filing."

While Metzler, Dobson and Comprenna are assured of a return to office with little fanfare, other incumbents are not so fortunate.

Ronald Cuevas, District 2 supervisor, is one of eight candidates for his position. However, he doesn't seem overly concerned about the crowded ballot.

Cuevas said, "I honestly don't feel that it would be any different if you have one or two opponents than if you have eight or

10. Your main goal is to concentrate on your campaign and try to win the race. You have to do that no matter how many people run against you."

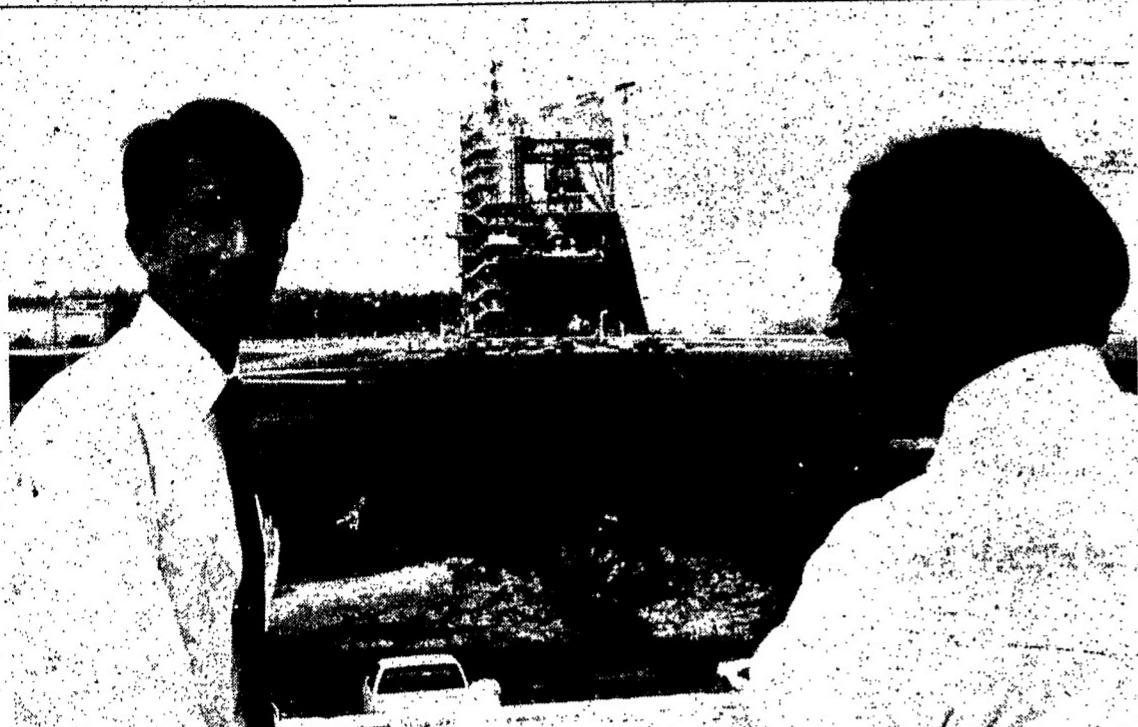

District 5 Supervisor Mike Ladner has nine opponents. The prospect of facing nine other people in the races doesn't thrill him.

Ladner said, "I'd like to have a whole lot fewer opponents. I guess a lot of people want to try it out for the first time. Either they're looking for a job or they want to see what politics is like."

"I'd like to have less; I'd like to have none. But it's a democratic world we live in. People have the right to run for office if they so choose."

"Welcome to my world."

Caldwell vies for District 2 seat

Russell Caldwell recently announced his candidacy for District 2 supervisor as a Republican.

Caldwell, along with his wife Renee, owns and operates Caldwell's Grocery & Deli in Waveland. They belong to St. Clare Catholic Church, where their daughters — Danielle, 13, Monica, 8, and Cheri, 6 — attend school.

Caldwell serves as a Eucharistic minister and is a member of several civic and business organizations. He sponsored and coached a t-ball team in the Waveland Little League during the past season.

Caldwell said, "Once elected, I will work for better government. I have specific ideas and will work hard for a better government in Hancock County."

"I believe Hancock County, with its potential, today needs energetic people with good insight to guide its growth."

"I believe there are four main concerns to most Hancock Countians: education, recreation, economic development and services."

"We need to increase our drug education in schools,

Russell Caldwell

because drug education is showing that it works."

"We also need to set up pilot programs through the vo-tech center to teach trade skills to teenagers. Many 16- to 21-year-olds are being ignored who, given the opportunity, would make real job training programs work. We need more and better parks and sport facilities for children and adults in Hancock County."

"We must start stronger economic development programs to keep Hancock County growing."

"We should base tax incentives on how many Hancock Countians are hired by new and expanding companies. Revenue collected from dockside gambling must be earmarked for specific services to ensure positive economic growth."

"We have to quit making excuses and start long- and short-term programs to make the county services work. Drainage, sewerage, water, garbage disposal, fire and police protection can and must be improved for a better Hancock County."

Sones said, "I will increase better litter control on our streets and roads so that our county will be a more enjoyable and beautiful place to live. Therefore, we can feel proud of our community, and others coming in the area will feel more welcome."

"QUOTEABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I have been hearing much talk about the recent laws regarding undersized speckled trout and redfish in Mississippi Coast waters.

Thursday afternoon I was talking to Donald Strong of Bay St. Louis, who has been fishing all of his life in the waters of the Bay and he told me that he has retired his fishing pole for awhile.

Strong, like many others, is upset with the 14-inch minimum size on speckled trout, and as most fishermen know, only in the Fall do we stand a chance of catching legal size trout along Bay-Waveland shorelines.

I have fished many years in the inside waters of the Bay bridges, and very seldom did we ever catch a redfish 22 inches or longer.

We caught plenty about 18 or 20 inches long and maybe every three or four years one 22 inches or longer.

The new laws passed by our Mississippi State Legislators should be respected by all fishermen, as Bureau of Marine Resources officers are only following the law and doing their duty in issuing tickets to those with undersized speckled trout and redfish.

Coastal Justice Court judges are too directed by law to issue a minimum fine of $100 plus court costs when a person, who is ticketed pleads guilty, and that is just for one undersized speckled trout or redfish. The fines can really mount when a person is ticketed for several in possession.

The maximum fine is $500 each violation.

Judges by law cannot suspend any portion of the fine, sorta like the DUI laws.

The only way the law is going to change is for the State Legislature to act.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

Business issues candidates should support

Now is the time to make candidates for seats in the Mississippi Legislature commit to an agenda of issues vital to business development and vitality.

The Mississippi Economic Council believes candidates should support the following issues:

- * Priority funding for education on both the state and local levels. At the same time, schools should be required to present demonstrable evidence of improvements in education as additional resources are committed to our educational system.

- * Tort reform, including reasonable limitations on punitive and other noneconomic damages and deductions for collateral source contributions to damages. Also, a manufacturer should be protected in product liability cases by proving the product was manufactured to existing approved standards and practices at the time.

- * Abandonment of Mississippi's archaic position as the nation's last state to retain an elected highway commission.

explained what he considered to be the various problems and how they might be corrected. He also submitted an estimated cost should the work be contracted.

The board took Levy's maps and proposals under advisement for further review.

Bids were opened on a conglomeration of scrap equipment the city had been trying to bid out as one item for several weeks. When the third and final bid of $2,538 was read, Ward 1 Alderman Barbara Rappold called out, "Take that one," which they did as it was the high bid.

James Neumiller spoke to the board concerning the cleaning of property he claimed belongs to his son.

Colson had asked that the board proceed with adjudication since he did not notice any significant change upon viewing the area the day prior to the meeting.

Neumiller protesting saying, "You must need glasses." He listed the number of loads of various items he claimed to have removed from the property during the past two weeks.

The board had given Neumiller a two-week extension on his public hearing concerning the property clean up.

Gex told the board they could not adjudicate until Neumiller was given a hearing, which he suggested the city do at the next board meeting.

The board approved the hearing for September 2 and Neumiller was verbally notified as he stood before the aldermen and mayor.

The mayor was given authority by the board to sign legal papers which would remove the name of Waveland from the deeds of trust issued during the construction of the Gulf Grove Apartments.

Friot also received board approval on a change order with G. Dale Smith, general contractor, for current work along Central Avenue.

The order involved no cost adjustments, but a difference in how an extention of pipe would be laid across the avenue. Instead of boring under the street, the new order would direct the contractor to lay the pipe into the street covering.

Approval for the city to give $500 to Waveland Civic Association was given following a rewording of a motion, whereby, the money was in payment for city advertisement during the Labor Day Fireworks Display.

Gex reminded the board that "under the law, the city can only give money when it is to promote the city."

Minutes from the previous city meeting were approved following corrections made by Rappold, Colson and Weidman.

Discussion of whether the board contracted yearly or monthly with the St. Vincent de Paul Society for the two rooms in the City Hall Annex Building, was settled when Ward 4 Alderman Stan Weidman played a tape recording of the motion as worded by Rappold.

The minutes were amended and approved.

After the bills were seconded for approval, discussion of why the city reimbursed a man for sewerage installation which he cancelled prior to its placement was halted when Rappold "called the question on the motion."

The bills were approved.

In other business the board approved:

—authorization for the mayor to sign a proclamation making August 26 to September 2 "National JTPA (Job Training Partnership Act) Alumni Week;"

—authorization to send Michael Barnes and Sylvester Harrington to the 16th annual Water Supply Short Course in Biloxi for a $65 fee;

—authorization to send Jimmy Varnell to Crime Scene Seminar in Monroe, La., from September 23 to 26; and —authorization for Varnell to attend the Identity-Kit Training Class at the Jackson Police Training Academy from August 28 to 29.

Friot added an announcement that water service would be disrupted Monday, beginning at 8 a.m., so that repairs can be made. The area affected is west of Waveland Avenue, north of Hubbard Street and south of Highway 90, including the Idlewood subdivision.

Dowdy

DOCKSIDE GAMBLING

He said he is personally opposed to gambling, but he believes the people should have the opportunity to vote on the matter.

"In Hancock County, the people have spoken. Although I am opposed to gambling, I will not be an impediment to the county. I will appoint reasonable people to regulate the industry in the state."

TOURISM

Dowdy said he thinks this economic tool has been badly overlooked in recent years.

A 1961 Gulfport High School graduate, he said he remembers when the Gulf Coast and its beaches were a big draw for tourists from mid-America. That status as a tourist mecca has dwindled over the years, he commented.

"We need to try to regain that position," Dowdy stated.

His ideas for increasing tourism include luring a NASCAR track to the Coast and playing on the area's popularity as a migration destination for "snowbird" golfers from northern states and Canada.

His main concern in restoring the state to financial health is rebuilding communication between the state's three governmental branches.

"Over the last four years, there has not been good communication between the governor and the legislature, or between the two chambers. At the end of the Allain administration, the state had a $100 million surplus. Now, we have a $100+ million deficit."

BACKGROUND

Dowdy, a graduate of Millsaps College and the Jackson School of Law, has lived in McComb since 1969, where he is in the radio broadcast business as a station owner.

He and his wife Susan, also a Millsaps alumna, have three children: daughter Dunbar, 23, a Millsaps graduate; son Charles, 21, a senior at the same college; and daughter Eloise, 18, entering Millsaps this year as a freshman.

The Dowdys are Methodists, and Dowdy said they are active in their church.

Reflections On Life

*By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD*

A certain gas station-general store is a very convenient watering hole along one stretch of Interstate 10. Situated at just the right distance between towns for a rest break, it comes in handy for coffee or a pina colada slush puppy.

When I stop there late at night to refresh myself, there is usually the same young lady there, sporting a sunny personality and a flashing smile. As I turn to leave, we exchange pleasantries once more and I wish her the best.

In the very act of exiting the door, I never fail to wonder to myself, almost with a feeling of unworthiness, whether she feels as good about seeing me as I do about seeing her.

Yet, I hesitate at the very analysis of the ongoing saga. It is such a delightful, wholesome feeling about another human being that it almost seems taboo, prohibited.

I have caught myself wondering what the same thing about many different people: children, adults, male and female alike. There is a peculiar little shyness present here, and it seems to be present in practically all of us humans.

That shyness, hard to read and usually unacknowledged because of our insecurity, seems to be whispering in our ears: "It is too good to be true that another person actually feels just as good about me as I feel about her/him."

Definitely, it has to be the ever-lurking bugbear of low self-esteem which drives us to doubt that other people can have a turned-on, charged up feeling about us and because of things which they like in us.

Do you ever wonder whether I'm wondering what you are wondering? Certainly, I often wonder whether you are wondering what I am wondering.

Again, this hesitant wondering betrays how I feel almost unworthy to dare think that this wonderful feeling which I have about a fellow human may be the same feeling which she/he has about me. Yes, it does seem too good to be true.

At this point, tragedy often enters this situation. The person who does not rise above that negative feeling of unworthiness is doomed to undermine, strain and eventually destroy every human relationship of any kind.

Nowhere is this more noticeable, more true and more painful than in the magnified intimacy of marriage. Where one spouse feels unworthy of being liked/loved by the other spouse the same way she/he is liked/loved, their relationship is on sand and will soon be washed away.

If there is any failure in intimacy, both in the popular sense of the bedroom and in the broader and much more important sense of all-around contact, that failure is traceable in the main to the hesitancy of being turned on by another or to the fear of being unworthy to turn another on.

Friendship fares no better unless the "friends" have a nearly equal feeling of worthiness, of a willingness to be tuned in to and turned on by other people, and likewise of a conviction that, yes, I am as worthy a subject and object of others' feelings as they are of mine.

No, it is not too good to be true that we are mutually turned on by the beautiful qualities which we find in one another. It only seems too good to be true. Thank God for making us so wondrous that we are finest gifts to each other.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Boneless beef chuck roasts share the "bargain buys" lime-light at our area supermarkets, with whole Boneless Butt fresh pork roasts and smoked picnic hams and with specially priced whole fryers claiming their place as well.

Ham shank portions and boneless hams (sliced free if you wish) are also excellent buys, along with Western style pork ribs and lean pork steaks. And, with late summer vegetables and fruits in lavish supply at good prices, and with the fall vegetables a-coming in, planning tasty and nutritious meals should be no trouble at all.

I plan to buy a chuck roast, season it well and let it cook itself in the crockpot, along with potatoes and onions and carrots, while I get started on that best seller I've been wanting to read!

Then I'll slice up a couple of juicy, ripe tomatoes, sprinkle basil leaves over, and bathe them in good olive oil and just a drop or so of vinegar for accent, with dustings of black pepper. And, to complete the easier than easy dinner, I'll have melon slices, canteloupe or watermelon or one of the newer, more exotic (at least to me) varieties.

By the way, there haven't been any problems with cante-loupes here along the Coast, such as there have been in other areas. Just be sensible, as with all fresh vegetables and fruits, and wash surfaces, refrigerate cut melons and don't be careless in using.

On the other hand, if I choose a pork roast or chops or ham or chicken specials, I might complement these entrees with a variety of summer squash, sauteed or broiled or perhaps stuffed and baked.

August wouldn't be August without a surplus of one squash or another about the place, would it? And what varieties there are! Although zucchini seems to be No. 1 on the extra-prolific lists in home gardens and vegetable bins alike—whole cookbooks have been written about zucchini alone!—there are many other tasty varieties. The yellow crookneck squash and the mirilton (or chayote) are among my favorites.

I enjoy squash raw, sliced, with or without a dip of some sort. I like it in salads and stir fries, also steamed, as well as baked in a casserole. And, I enjoy it as a "carriage" for seafood stuffing (hollowed out and baked).

It's a quick answer to the "what vegetable for lunch or dinner?" question. Just slice and saute or broil along with whatever else you're cooking. And, try mixed sliced or chopped squash, along with bell (green) peppers and onions and wedges of fresh tomatoes as a sort of "garden sauce" or topping for pasta.

I think late summer's ripe juicy tomatoes are my favorite. And, here's one of my favorite lazy-day ways to use them:

QUICK FRESH TOMATO SORT-OF-SAUCE

6 to 8 tomatoes (peeled, seeded and chopped)

4 to 6 Tblsp. olive oil
Dash of hot pepper sauce
Several basil leaves
Pepper, salt to your taste
Combine all ingredients, and use to top pasta or as a relish or topping for garlic bread or toasts. ***

Or, if you find some green tomatoes amongst the ripe ones, even if you have to search a bit, try:

BROILED GREEN TOMATOES

3 green tomatoes, medium to large

2 Tblsp. butter or margarine

2 Tblsp. flour

1/2 tsp. oregano

Pepper, salt to your taste

Cut off stem ends of the tomatoes, and slice half an inch thick. Spread each slice with butter. Combine the flour, salt and pepper with oregano, and spread over each slice. Place under broiler, 3 inches from heat, for 5 minutes, or bake in a 375 degree oven 10 minutes. Sprinkle with paprika.

Serve with meat or chicken or other vegetables. This makes a colorful and tasty garnish and border for a meat platter or such. (4 servings) commercial fishing. But there is a time and a place for everything.

"We are not trying to be any different than any of the other counties."

"Harrison County does not allow gill net fishing on the beach for safety reasons and we, as a board, feel it is unsafe to have it on our beaches."

Seymour, who was the only supervisor to attend the public hearing, delivered a memo to BMR which expressed the board's input.

The memo reiterated the board's original request and included the recommendation that gill net fishing should be allowed 1,500 feet from the area of suggestion.

The memo calls for the BMR proposed Option 2.

Tuesday night BMR asked for input on three proposals including:

Option one, a total ban from the Bay St. Louis bridge to Bayou Caddy;

Option two, a ban up to 1,500 feet, from the shoreline between the bridge and the bayou; and

Option three, a ban up to 750 feet, from the shoreline between the bridge and the bayou with an exception to be made from May 15 to September 15, when the ban would be extended to 1,200 from the shoreline of the named area.

Gex said, three supervisors, Robert Peterson (District 1), Mike Ladner (District 5) and Seymour, had met with BMR deputy director Joe Gill prior to Tuesday's public hearing. At that time, Gex recalled, the director mentioned at the end of the meeting that he would like the supervisors to join them up there (at the public hearing).

Gill had stated following the hearing that he was disappointed in the turnout of the county's supervisors.

He also said that as a result of his earlier meeting with the board, he "understood that they would be present" at the hearing.

"Personally, if I had known we were supposed to have been there," Ladner said, "I would have been there."

"I have never missed a meeting on purpose."

Board president and District 2 Representative Ronald Cuevas stated, "Our position on the gill nets has been steady and fixed for three and a half years and the purpose of this public hearing was for BMR to receive input from the public."

"They had our resolution in hand and have known for some time our position."

District 3 Supervisor Lisa Coward added, "We speak through our minutes and when we passed that resolution it stated out position."

Peterson interjected, "I don't think any one here is afraid to take a stand on gill nets."

"I've always felt strongly that the gill nets on the beach don't go along with the recreation on the beach."

"The number of people at Buccaneer Park who use the beach, especially the small children, I feel adds to make the practice (gill net fishing near shore) a dangerous situation."

Gill reported late Friday evening he had just received a formal letter of recommendation from the Hancock County Board of Supervisors which stated they chose to go with the second option, but that they did not want the third choice to even be considered.

Gill said BMR should have a recommendation prepared Monday for the Wednesday panel hearing by the State Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks. The state department will make the final determination on gill net regulations.

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is in the process of formulating a county-wide calendar of events.

Cindy Vernon, chamber executive director, said, "Many times there are several competing events held on the same day in the area, and the chamber's board of directors feels this could be avoided by proper organization."

The chamber's office is now collecting information on dates of all activities and events planned throughout the county for churches, schools, organizations and groups," Vernon added.

Vernon continued, "The only way this will be possible is for all the committee chairmen or presidents to submit their functions and dates, whether it is a one-time affair or annual."

If a group or organization wants to plan an event, all that will be necessary is to call the chamber once this calendar is completed, and they will be advised of what may already be going on a particular date, Vernon stated.

The chamber receives inquiries on a regular basis from out-of-town residents seeking to find out if there are any activities scheduled for a special weekend or day.

For your convenience, a blank form for chairmen or presidents to complete appears on Page 11-B of this issue of The Sea Coast Echo.

Please fill in and send to: The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 103, Bay St. Louis, MS., 39520, or for further information, call 467-9048.

American Cancer Society's first indoor golf tourney termed 'success'

Nearly 40 golfers (and several non-golfers) and dozens of spectators joined members and friends of the Hancock County Chapter American Cancer Society in their first indoor putting tournament last Friday.

Diamondhead's spacious Qualidome was the setting for the 18-hole course, complete with numerous obstacles.

Each golfer was penalized 50¢ each time he/she hit a wall, unless "insurance" was purchased for $7, allowing unlimited hits.

Insurance sales were quite brisk, according to tournament Henry Kibler of Diamondhead.

Prizes were awarded for the following:

Individual low score, Steve Wilson; second low score, Ted Godard; and third low score, George Kollasch (in a play off);

Team low score, Frank Jaumot, George Kollasch and Hester Plauche;

Most holes-in-one, Bob Calvey; team with most holes-in-one (decided in a play off), Lou Lamendola, Tom Fredian, Dave Ludwig and Steve Wilson;

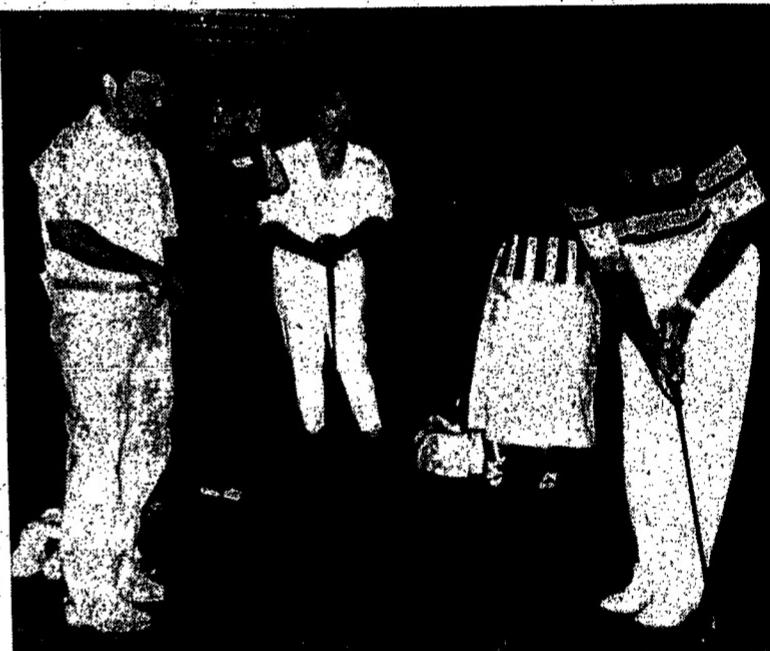

First hole-in-one on #5, Ted Szelag; on #18, Don Gardner; and second on #18, Steve Wilson.

A buffet preceded the tournament, with food catered (and donated) by Court Street Cuisine, Diamondhead Supermarket, The Reef, Lil'Ray's and Layne's Fried Chicken. Kibler expressed gratitude to the management of The Qualidome, who donated use of the facility for the event.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139

The regular monthly meeting of the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Auxiliary, Unit 139, was held Monday, Aug. 19, at the Legion home on Green Meadow Road.

President Janet Aime opened the meeting. Color-bearers Hazel Wohlschlegel and Roslyn Weathers advanced the colors, and Chaplain Ursula Favre read the opening prayers. The president led the members in the Pledge of Allegiance and the Preamble.

Secretary Jeanette Ladner took the roll call of officers; all were present. She then read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were accepted and approved as read. Treasurer Bobbie Tomlinson then gave her report on the finances of the Unit.

President Aime then asked for reports of the various committees:

Membership — Mattie North said the Unit has reached one-third so far and hopes to reach its goal by November 11. Lou Wilkerson, state vice president, was congratulated for her seminar on membership which was held Saturday, Aug. 10, in Jackson.

VACS — Shirley Clemons, second vice president, reported dates for the "ice cream and cake" parties for the veterans in Gulfport, and mentioned some plans that sound great for the coming year.

Chaplain — Ursula Favre told of sending "get-well" and sympathy cards to ailing and bereaved members, and asked the members for their help in letting her know when the members have occurrences of this nature.

Emergency — Oris Planchard spoke on the returns of recycling and money received; thanked the members for their contributions; wanted all to know how happy she was to have been nominated as "Auxiliary Member of the Year"; and thanked the Auxiliary for the plaque and rose pin she was given on officer installation night.

Community service, Oris Planchard and Roslyn Weathers, co-chairmen — Oris Planchard reported on the bringing of clothing to the V.A. hospital in Gulfport and the Women's Shelter, and thanked Eddie Weathers for his help in driving the women to those locations and taking the clothing into the buildings.

Girls' State — Gloria Reineke reported for chairman Anna Gayaut. She suggested that the Unit speak to the girls who may be interested in going to Girls' State, and form a question-and-answer committee to tell those juniors interested in participating what Girls' State is about.

President Janet Aime thanked the members for selecting her for another year and said she hopes the Unit will have an outstanding year.

There being no further business, the Chaplain read the closing prayers. The colors were retired; the president spoke the closing words and the meeting was adjourned. Refreshments were then served.

Our appreciation and thanks also go to Post 77 in Waveland for allowing us to hold this event at their Post home since it is the largest air-conditioned building in the county.

Unit 139 members assembled at the Post 139 home August 9 to prepare some 40 pounds of potatoe for potato salad as their share of the 200 pounds needed for the festivities.

Great Books reading group begins third year Sept. 19

The Great Books Reading group of Hancock County will begin its third year Thursday, able in the library for those who have not yet received their readings.

In a Great Books reading and discussion group, adults meet informally to read, consider and discuss some of the best books written in the past 2,500 years. Meetings are every two weeks for approximately two hours. There are no requirements except the desire to learn and a commitment to read the material in advance.

Discussion is guided by two trained leaders—laymen, not experts—who encourage the group to think about problems of meaning in the great books by raising questions.

Typical readings in a Great Books program include histories, plays, political essays, novels and religious works. Corresponding to these categories, readings in the third series will be Thucydides' 'Peloponnesian War,' Chekhov's 'Uncle Vanya,' Mills' 'On Liberty,' James' 'The

Beast in the Jungle,' and 'The Gospel of Mark.'

For added consideration of more modern works on the lighter side, short selections of fiction will also be read and discussed. These will be taken from Mississippi writers: 'Reflections of Childhood and Youth' (edited by Dorothy Abbott; available at the library or the bookstore).

The short story for September will be 'The Harp of the Winds' by Mississippi writer Robert Canzoneri.

The Great Books Foundation is an independent, nonprofit educational corporation. There is no cost unless one wishes to have one's own copy, in which case the cost is $20 for the three volumes of the third series.

For additional information, call either of the two co-leaders: Gigi Raymond at 466-4655, or Richard McCollough at 467-6333, or the library at 467-5282.

Sept. 19, with a discussion of John Dewey's 'Habits and Will.' New participants are invited.

Order blanks for the 15 selections may be obtained at the Hancock County main library on Hwy. 90 in Bay St. Louis. Additional copies will be avail-

Feast of the Spurs

The tartans of Clan Scott and other members of the Highlands and Islands Association of Celtic Gatherings were seen everywhere Saturday at Christ Episcopal Church during the "Feast of the Spurs."

The Sir Walter Scott dinner attracted many visitors, as did the Celtic Ceilidh (kay'lee) that followed. This event featured Scottish country dancing; piping, Highland dancing and a sing-a-long.

Membership to the Highlands and Islands Association is open to those interested in Scottish heritage or to persons wishing to help promote and organize the Scottish Games on the Coast.

Area residents can obtain membership and activities information by contacting Jake Jacob at 467-4078.
